Lynne MacLean

Lynne MacLean is a self-proclaimed "seasonal opposite." She has a condo in Grand Harbor she rents during season and pops down from Roswell, GA off season or to attend events. Lynne heard about Impact 100 from her neighbor, Liz Locke. She went online and was impressed with our accomplishments. She, like most of us, joined to give back to the community and support the many worthy causes in Indian River County. She also likes seeing "the impact" of her donation, and wants to get to know the community and make new friends. Originally from a suburb of Boston, Lynne graduated from the University of Massachusetts with a B.S. in accounting and from Keller Graduate School with an MBA in project management. Her New England accent is still strong even after living in Georgia for 25 years. She retired from UPS after 39 years, became a travel advisor, and has enjoyed traveling to Europe and many exotic places.

Fritzi Byrnes

Fritzi Byrnes may be a familiar face to many of you because she was a member of Impact 100 in 2012-2013 and has quite a few friends who are members. She has been involved with Indian River Habitat for Humanity since then, and wants to re-educate herself on other non-profits and learn about other ways she can give back to the community. Originally from Baltimore, she graduated from the University of Maryland with a BA in English Literature and, subsequently, went into sales and marketing in the environmental and engineering field. Fritzi and her husband have been coming to Vero for the past 20 years and spend seven months of the year at their condo in the Moorings where they are members of the Moorings Country Club. A blended family, they have five grown children and are excitedly waiting for the birth of their tenth grandchild.

Maria Caldarone

Maria Caldarone believes "life is about giving back." Because of this philosophy and her friend and coworker Beth Livers, she decided to rejoin Impact 100 after being a member in 2015.

She has had an interesting career path: She is currently a realtor with Berkshire Hathaway, but has built homes, was involved with venture capital, and had a small law practice.

Originally from in Rochester NY, she graduated from Monmouth College and Seton Hall Law School and became a member of the Florida Bar in 1992. She moved full-time to Vero with her two sons in 1999 and is a member of Pointe West.

Donna Katen-Bahensky

Donna Katen-Bahensky brings a wealth of experience in the health care industry and on nonprofit boards to Impact 100. She spent her career in the private and university health care sectors, retiring as the director of the West Palm Beach VA Medical Center, which serves veterans in a seven-county area of South Florida. She has been involved with the Ronald McDonald House, Red Cross, United Way, American Heart Association, American Family Children's Hospital, Association of American Medical Colleges, and Veterans of Indian River County. Donna read an article about Impact 100 and was drawn to us because of the worthwhile community groups we support. Referred by Suzi McCoy Shriner, she joined because she wanted to meet other women who care about charitable activities and to use her skills to assist these charitable organizations. She and her husband have been married for 35 years and have lived full-time in Vero Beach since 2015. They have a blended family with three grown children, 7 grandchildren, and 3 great grandchildren.
